DEATH AND RUIN FOLLOW FLOODS

Nearly a Score Are Killed and $3,000,000 in Property Destroyed.

TWELVE MINERS ARE DROWNED

Storms and Cloudbursts Hit Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Michigan, Causing Damage and Loss of Life.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 25.—Nearly a score of persons lost their lives by drowning and lightning, property was damaged to an amount approximating $3,000,000 and two hundred or more passengers marooned by washouts, caused by devastating floods and cloudbursts that struck sections of western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Michigan.

The greatest loss of life was in the Superior coal mine, near Uniontown, Pa., where twelve miners, caught by an overwhelming flood of water, were drowned, while thirty-seven of their fellow workmen escaped to the surface after harrowing experiences. Traffic on the main line of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and several of its branches is suspended owing to landslides and washouts near Wheeling, W. Va., while several branches of the Pennsylvania railroad in the vicinity of Pittsburg suffered a serious disarrangement of schedules.

Immense Damage at Wausau.

Immense property damage was done in the vicinity of Wausau, Wis., which is the center of the largest paper manufacturing district in the central west. Washington county, Pennsylvania, reports the heaviest rainfall in twenty-six years and the narrow escape of seventy-five miners from the flooded Desoe mine at Millstboro.

In the Red Stone valley of Pennsylvania, more than one thousand families are homeless and are encamped in the rain on the hillsides.

The family of H. L. King, consisting of three persons, was struck by lightning and all were killed in the King home near Richmond, W. Va., and Joseph Howard, a Baltimore & Ohio trackman, was caught in a landslide and smothered.

Six persons are reported drowned near New Martinsville, W. Va., but the report lacks confirmation owing to the demoralized state of wire communication.

20,000 Flee for Safety.
Twenty thousand persons, residents of the valley beneath the Cool Springs reservoir, the largest in Fayette county, are fleeing from their homes, fearing a repetition of the Austin disaster. Water is seeping from the Cool Springs dam and it is feared that it will not be able to hold the enormous torrent of water which poured into the reservoir during the day.

Cloudburst Does Great Damage.

Connellsville, Pa., July 25.—Fifty families are homeless and $200,000 worth of property destroyed was the result of a cloudburst and flood at Dunbar. That scores of lives were not lost is due only to the heroic efforts of Martha Velth, a telephone operator in Dunbar, who stayed at her post when she knew a flood was rushing down upon the village and warned one after another of the residents, giving them time to save their lives.

Wausau (Wis.) Loss Heavy.

Wausau, Wis., July 25.—Flood damage estimated at $1,400,000 was wrought from the breaking of two dams on the Wisconsin river north of Wausau.

Three bridges in this city have been washed out and a fourth has been partly destroyed.

All electric power, including street car service, has been put out of commission.

The flood made inroads on the waterworks plant and cut off the city's supply.

The dams which were swept away are known as the Tomahawk and Brokaw structures. A large volume of water swept down the river front, covering the streets of Wausau near the river and surrounding the city hall. No loss of life has yet been reported.

Town of Shawano Inundated.

Oshkosh, Wis., July 25.—The deluge of rain has inundated the town of Shawano. It is estimated that from eight to twelve inches fell. The Wolf river has been raised so high at this point that one end of the dam may have to be dynamited to save the mills of the Wolf River Paper Fiber company.

Eight Reported Killed by Storm.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 25.—Storm has washed Ohio-river bridges away, trains held up in dangerous places, Baltimore & New York express held up by landslides fifteen miles east of here. Reports that miles of track is torn up. Eight are reported killed.

SENATOR W. A. MASSEY

W. A. Massey was appointed by the governor of Nevada to fill out the unexpired term of the late United States Senator Nixon.

In this vicinity. Traffic paralyzed and damage will reach $300,000. At Moundsville 150 miners employed at the Round Coal company mine had a narrow escape from being drowned like rats in a trap. The water started pouring in the mine when one of the officials of the mine entered the shaft and spread the alarm. All were rescued.

Six persons are reported drowned by the storm east of New Martinsville.

VISITS DIXON AFTER MANY YEARS

GEORGE PORTER OF TAYLORVILLE RETURNS TO OLD HOME AFTER NEARLY HALF A CENTURY.

George Porter of Taylorville is in Dixon on a visit with his brother-in-law, Wm. H. Gillespie, after having been away from Dixon for nearly half a century, and during a visit at the Telegraph office this morning told us his delight in Dixon's rapid advancement and great changes for the better since his departure from the scenes of his boyhood haunts.

To be exact, Mr. Porter left Dixon 47 years ago, and it is almost that long since he has seen Mr. Gillespie. That gentleman visited him at his home a few weeks ago.

Mr. Porter's errand here, aside from visiting his many friends which of course is a source of great pleasure to him and, incidentally, to them, is to erect a monument over the grave of his long-departed sister, Miss Mary Ann Porter, at Temperance Hill.

BEVERIDGE FOR PROGRESSIVE CHAIRMAN

EX-SENATOR TO TAKE CHARGE AT THE CONVENTION IN CHICAGO.

Chicago, July 25.—Special to the Telegraph.—Former Senator Beveridge will be temporary chairman of the Progressive National Convention when it meets in Chicago on August 5, declared Senator Dixon, Roosevelt's campaign manager today. Senator Beveridge has accepted.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY SPIRITUALISTS ASSN.

The 30th session of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualists association will be held at Mt. Pleasant park, in Clinton, Iowa, from July 28th to August 25th.

The program consists of splendid lectures, fine mediums, excellent music and an excellent lyceum course.

FORMER FIRE CHIEF HERE.

N. H. Detrick, with his brother, George, former fire chief in Dixon and now fire chief for the Calumet Elevator company, and the Rosenbaum Grain company, arrived here last evening in the former's auto, on a trip through northern Illinois.

DIXON MILITIA BOYS ARE BACK FROM CAMP

COMPANY G RETURNED FROM CAMP WITH REGULARS LAST NIGHT.

CAMP WAS BEST IN HISTORY

Soldier Boys Say They Generally Enjoyed Trip and Received Particularly Beneficial Training.

Company G arrived home at 5:15 p. m. yesterday from what the officers and privates alike say was the very best camp experience the Sixth regiment has ever had, at Camp McCoy, near Sparta, Wis., where many regiments of the militia from several states and regiments of the United States regular army have been encamped for the past ten days.

The men tell some very interesting experiences of their stay at Camp McCoy, where the topography of the land was such as to give them every possible condition of real soldier life. High hills, thick underbrush, creeks, gulches and valleys, and in fact all imaginable conditions were found on the grounds, which are of exceptional size and because of this change and the presence of the regular army the militiamen were greatly pleased with the camp.

In Charge of Gen. Hoyt.

The camp was in charge of Gen. Hoyt, U. S. A., and a non-commissioned officer from the regulars was with each company of the regiment to assist the officers and men in getting the most good out of the regular army routine followed. In addition to this a commissioned officer from the regulars was with each battalion, insuring the highest efficiency in the teaching of the new tactics.

Company G was praised exceptionally highly by the U. S. A. corporal, who was stationed with them, the officer finding many occasions to compliment the men on their aptitude, and every member of the company returned determined to keep the standard of the company such that the praise which was given them can be repeated next year.

LARGE GENERATORS RECEIVED TODAY

4,000 VOLT GENERATORS FOR DIXON AND STERLING—GAS DEPARTMENT IS PROMPT.

The Illinois Northern Utilities company yesterday received two big 4,000 volt alternating generators for their plants in Dixon and Sterling. The generators, which are the latest and best of the General Electric company, were received in a special car, one being unloaded at the local plant after which the car was taken to Sterling, where the other was placed. Both generators will be used for lighting purposes only.

Gas Men Win Parise.

Residents of the northeast part of the city, who in the past were unable to get gas connections, are praising the officials in charge of the local gas plant for their promptness in extending the gas mains to that part of the city, following the signing of contracts for use of the fluid. The workmen were at work digging for the extension the afternoon following the signing of the contracts and in a day the main had been extended 1200 feet and all of the consumers had been connected.

GREEN STREET CARS.

The S. D. & E. this afternoon flashed one of the newly decorated city cars on the public, and many complimentary comments were to be heard. The car, which has been re-decorated, as all of the company's cars will be, is painted a dark green with gold trimmings, the effect being especially striking.

George Baine, a member of the Sterling fire department, called on the boys of the Dixon department today.

Miss Jessie Wheeler, who taught last year at the North Side high school, is taking a summer course at the Chicago University.

GEN. ATKINS SPEAKS OF LATE B. F. SHAW

FREEPORT EDITOR IN REMINISCENCES ON "EDITORS I KNEW."

The Sterling Gazette contains an article on "Editors I Knew," by Gen. Smith D. Atkins, Freeport, in which he speaks very kindly of the late B. F. Shaw of this city. The article follows:

In the Transaction of the Illinois Historical Society for 1910 just issued, among several valuable articles is one by Gen. Smith D. Atkins on "Editors I Have Known." He speaks of Carpenter, who established the Prairie Democrat, the first paper in Freeport; of Prof. Pinekey, who edited the Mt. Morris Gazette; of Jones, owner and editor of the Kane County Democrat at St. Charles; of Houghton, of the Galena Gazette; and of Selby, of the Jacksonville Journal.

In the spring of 1860 he became acquainted with Long John Wentworth, six feet six inches tall, the founder of the Chicago Democrat, originally a Jackson man, but a republican after 1860. In the spring of 1855 Gen. Atkins first saw Medill of the Chicago Tribune, and set type in the office. He last met him in the Harrison campaign of 1892, when Medill had become very deaf and used an ear trumpet.

Atkins has high praise for our old neighbor who passed away two years ago. "I knew Benjamin F. Shaw for more than half a century continuously, the editor of the Dixon Telegraph. He was a broad-minded man, sincerely honest in every line he wrote, always a machine politician in the best sense, believing in a majority rule, and that the country must be governed by parties."

When Gen. Atkins began the printing business at Freeport, he received $30 the first year and spent $16 of the money for a suit he could now buy for $6. That was before 1859. Atkins concludes his interesting sketch by saying: An ignorant man may become a millionaire peddling horse medicine, but no country editor can become a millionaire. He must be content with the honors of his profession, without becoming wealthy. There is a striking portrait of the general.

PREPARE FOR HEAVY TRAFFIC.

Superintendent Dean Treat of the S. D. & E. yesterday had all of the company's trailers brought to Dixon ready for service during the Assembly, which opens Saturday. The cars will be overhauled and every bit of the traction company's equipment will be pressed into service during the chautauqua.

RIVER VERY HIGH.

The gauges at the dam show that the river has raised about three feet here in the last week, the water being especially high for this season of the year. Exceptionally heavy rains in the north have occasioned the change in the stage of water. Several launch owners have taken advantage of the high water and made the trip to Oregon.

PRINCE DELL WAS SLOW.

Dr. James Rice's trotter, Prince Dell, was left in the lurch yesterday at Ottawa when the horse started in the 2:20 trot, the animal finishing ninth. The race was stepped in 2:21½, 2:15½ and 2:18½.

SALE WILL CONTINUE THROUGH AUGUST.

S. Rosephthal's Sons will continue their big clothing sale for a few weeks longer and will offer especially low prices on everything in their large stock. Their announcement is in this issue, and further notices of the sale will be given from time to time.

FUNERAL IN HARVARD.

INTERMENT IN WALWORTH
The remains of Rev. M. N. Clark were taken to Harvard, Ill., a former pastorate of the deceased, at 7:21 o'clock this morning. Short services will be held there and then the body will be taken to Walworth, Wis., for interment.

POLICE PICK UP YOUNGEST "TRAMPS"

SERGEANT GAFFNEY ENCOUNTERS NINE YEAR OLD "BOS."

NOTHING TO EAT FOR A DAY

Chicago Lads Got on the Train for a "Short Ride." Ended at Freeport—Took Train South—Sent Home From Here.

Police Sergeant John Gaffney this morning picked up the two youngest "tramps" he ever encountered in his many years experience as a police official, when he took from a south-bound Illinois Central freight train two boys about nine years old, who gave their names as Stanley Kachshy, 1610 South Jefferson street, and John Tolash, 1454 Newberry avenue, Chicago.

The sergeant was at the I. C. depot when he noticed a bareheaded boy in a gondola car, and he immediately boarded the train and was surprised to find another little fellow there also. He took them both from the train, and they told their story.

Nothing to Eat for a Day.

The two boys said they were going to the lake to go swimming yesterday morning when they saw a freight train passing and boarded it for a "short ride" as one of the lads said. The train kept going, however, and they could not get out until they arrived at Freeport last night.

They waited around in the Freeport yards for a train back to Chicago and finally boarded the train from which they were taken by the Dixon officer. They said they had had nothing to eat since yesterday morning, and neither of them was well dressed, one boy having nothing but an undershirt and pair of pants on.

Mr. Gaffney took them to Siebolt's restaurant and purchased them a good meal, after which he purchased tickets to Chicago and sent them home on the Northwestern passenger train leaving here at 10:50 o'clock this morning.

LOCAL PROGRESSIVES RUN FOR CONGRESS

A. W. ROSECRANS OF ASHTON AND J. T. WILLIAMS OF STERLING SAID TO BE AFTER J. C. MCKENZIE'S JOB.

The Chicago Record Herald this morning contained the announcement that A. W. Rosecrans of Ashton and J. T. Williams of Sterling were both candidates for congress against the present incumbent, John C. McKenzie, on the Progressive ticket.

It is understood that the Sterling man is an avowed candidate and Mr. Rosecrans, when interviewed over the phone from the Telegraph office this afternoon, said that he had not announced his candidacy as yet and that he had nothing to say about the matter at this time.

E. J. Harden, collection manager for the International Harvester company in Winnipeg, Manitoba, has left for his home after being in Dixon for several days to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Catherine Harden.

R. L. Burchell and daughters, Miss Marguerite, of Erie, and Mrs. L. M. Shoecraft and son Robert of Clinton, Iowa, will occupy their cottage at Assembly park during the chautauqua session.

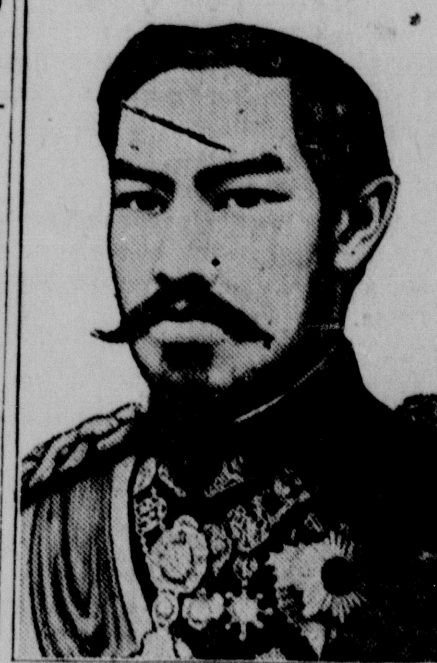

Mrs. F. L. Young and Misses Helen and Agnes Tague were callers last evening at the Lindeman home on the Chicago road.

Mrs. A. J. Horner and daughter, Hattie, were visitors yesterday afternoon at the J. L. Tossberger home.

Miss Margaret Lister of Morrison was here Tuesday and visited at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Coakley.

Miss Gertrude Hill, who has been attending the Chicago University, has gone to Pontiac to fill an engagement at the chautauqua.

EMPEROR OF JAPAN

STRONG ATTRACTIONS FOR ASSEMBLY

MONTRAVILLE WOOD, AUG. 8—ROBERT GLENN AND OPERATIC COMPANY.

Electrical engineers of Dixon will know who Montraville M. Wood is. But there are some people who do not know this man and have never heard of him.

Montraville M. Wood will be at the Assembly on Thursday evening, August 8th.

Mr. Wood is one of the foremost inventors, particularly in the electrical world. The patents that have been awarded to Mr. Wood amount to almost one hundred, the majority of which are in practical use today.

Mr. Wood is responsible for the following inventions:

The safety third-rail shoe for electric roads.
The Wood arc lamp.
The welding of copper rail bonds.
The two-button snap switch.
The trolley catcher.

Mr. Wood's researches in the electrical world date back to 1878. He has filled the position of district engineer of the Edison company for the Pacific coast, and in 1899 was in charge of the engineering department of the North Pacific Exposition in Portland, Ore., where the honor of opening the exposition was bestowed upon his young daughter, who accompanies her father on his lecture tours.

Mr. Wood is an excellent entertainer. He is a splendid talker and his talks interest his auditors to the greatest degree.

Glenn Here Again.

Robert B. Glenn, ex-governor of North Carolina, will be here again, delivering his sermon-lecture Sunday afternoon, August 4th at 2:30 o'clock.

Glenn puts his heart into his lectures. His lecture on Sunday will make at least one Sunday of this year's session remembered.

Operatic Company.

The Chicago Operatic company will be at the Assembly again this year, playing a concert next Wednesday evening, and again Monday evening, August 5th. This is one of the best companies of this character on the chautauqua platform today, and when the company was here last year it made a decided hit.

The postoffice, banks, hotel and many business buildings were also burned.

REACH 264 FEET OF M'KINLEY'S STOP

Professor Parker and Companion Attain Altitude of 20,200 Feet.

BUT FAIL TO REACH SUMMIT

Columbia University Man on Way Home After Unsuccessful Expedition to Highest Peak in North America—Third Attempt.

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 25.—After having climbed nearly four miles up the steep sides of Mount McKinley, to a point within 264 feet of the summit, Prof. Herschell Parker of Columbia and Belmore Brown of Tacoma gave up their efforts to reach the goal and are on their way home.

Professor Parker has arrived at Tolva, on the Tanana river, and reported their failure to reach the top of the mountain. Two attempts were made, one on the north and the other on the south peak. An altitude of 20,200 feet was reached on the north peak and 19,000 on the south peak.

Severe blizzards about the summit prevented the scaling of the peaks. Excellent photographs were taken. Professor Parker said a severe earthquake was felt while the party was on the mountain.

All members of the expedition are well and are returning via Fort Gibbon, the advice says. This is the third attempt of Professor Parker and Brown to reach the summit of Mount McKinley.

Recalls Tale of "Doc" Cook.

The possibility of the ascent of Mount McKinley, the highest peak in North America, has been a subject of much scientific and popular speculation since the days of the decline and fall of Dr. Frederick A. Cook.

Doctor Cook asserted that he had attained the summit, and published a book recounting his hardship in the achievement. When the "doc" stubbed his toe on the north pole his mountaineering exploits also were brought into question, and many scientists—among them Professor Parker—declared that the Brooklyn man's story was untrue. Affidavits from one of Doctor Cook's companions on the expedition tended to strengthen the theory of the skeptics.

AMBOY VETERAN CALLED TO REST

JOHN A. CARROLL, 90 YEARS OLD, A HIGHLY RESPECTED CITIZEN, DIED TODAY.

John A. Carroll, an aged citizen and civil war veteran, died at the home of his son, James, in Amboy at 10 a. m. today. Deceased was 91 years old and for the past 50 years had resided at Amboy. Mr. Carroll had been quite active and apparently in the best of health until a week ago Friday, when his health seemed to fail, probably on account of his age. For over a week he had been confined to his bed.

He leaves three children, two sons, James and Amboy and Thomas of Denver; and one daughter, Mrs. Ellen Burns of Amboy. The funeral will probably be held Saturday at 10 a. m. at St. Patrick's church in Amboy. Interment will be made at the Amboy cemetery.

The Groomers of Mankind of Dixon have been enjoying an exceptionally good patronage since company G returned home. No barber shops at camp proved of benefit to the Dixon shops.

It's a cinch some of Dixon's citizens will not think so much of Doc Wiley when he gets through telling them some of the things they are so fond of are positively injurious to their health.

PROTESTS HIT WOMEN

Are Opposed as Wireless Operators in Washington.

Department of Labor and Commerce Has Already Granted One License—Taft Is Appealed To.

Washington, July 25.—The recommendation of the Cook county coroner's jury that only men should be employed in railroad signal towers because women's judgment is unsafe when human lives are at stake, has made the president and congress the center of a storm of protest which has to do mainly with the newly acquired right of women to serve as wireless operators on passenger steamships.

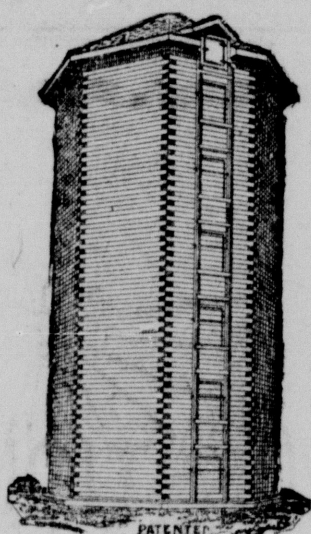

Coincident with the verdict of the jury on the death of the 13 victims of the Burlington wreck at Western Springs on July 14, that the disaster occurred because Mrs. F. A. Wilcox, the tower operator, lost her nerve, pressure was started on congress, to prohibit the issuance of wireless operators' certificates to women. This has brought an announcement from the department of commerce and labor that one woman has already been granted such a license, and that she is now on the Pacific ocean at work on the steamship Mariposa.

CAUCUS HITS WARSHIPS

Democrats of House by Vote of 70 to 62 Turn Down New Vessels.

Washington, July 25.—Deciding in caucus by a vote of 70 to 62 to stand out against any battleship authorization at this session of congress, the Democratic house recorded its obstinate determination to defy the sentiment of the country as expressed at national political conventions and to override the will of the people.

PIERPONT MORGAN REACHES GOTHAM

Famous Financier Arrives Home, But Has "Nothing to Say."

MET DOWN BAY BY HIS SON

Asked If He Went Abroad to Avoid Steel and Money Trust Investigating Committee Refuses to Answer the Question.

New York, July 25.—J. Pierpont Morgan returned from Europe on the Olympic, taciturn as usual. Mr. Morgan firmly repulsed all efforts of the hordes of reporters who besieged him on his arrival for an expression of opinion on various public questions.

"Nothing to say," was the financier's remark to inquiries.

"What do you think of Winston Churchill's speech in which he asked for five and a half million pounds for the British navy and frankly threw off the diplomatic muffer in his remarks about Germany?"

"What was that?" asked the banker. He seemed greatly interested and pressed for details of the speech. But when he had been told all about it, he remarked:

"Nothing to say!"

Kaiser Didn't Tell Him.

"But you've just returned from Germany, Mr. Morgan, where you've been hobnobbing with the Kaiser. You ought to know something about it."

"I know I have," replied Mr. Morgan brusquely, "but the Kaiser didn't say anything to me about it. He didn't tell me that he was going to make war with England."

"Did you go abroad to avoid a subpoena to appear before the Steel and Money Trust investigating committee?"

"I told you I wouldn't say anything about that, so don't ask me again."

"What do you think of the Bull Moose party, Mr. Morgan?"

"The Bull Moose?" said the banker, "what about them?"

"Why, that is Colonel Roosevelt's progressive party," was explained.

"What do I know about Roosevelt?" was the only answer.

Financier Met by Son.

Mr. Morgan was met by his son, J. P. Morgan, Jr., who went down the bay to quarantine on the Morgan yacht Corsair, where the financier left the Olympic for the yacht. This week he will occupy for the first time his magnificent new offices covering the twenty-ninth floor of the new Merchants' Trust building. These offices are floored with teakwood, ornamented with art treasures gathered in all parts of the world, and reached by an elevator exclusively for the use of Mr. Morgan and such persons as call upon him.

MRS. MCCORMICK IS ILL

Rockefeller's Daughter Said to Be in Sanitarium Near New York.

Mrs. McCormick, together with her husband and three children and Mr. McCormick's mother, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, were to have sailed to Europe a few days ago. On the eve of sailing, however, Mrs. McCormick is said to have become suddenly ill and was hurried to a sanitarium instead of sailing.

PROGRESSIVES HOLD MEET

State Convention Is Held in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Oklahoma City, Okla., July 25.—The Progressives held their state convention in Oklahoma City with about 300 delegates and a large attendance of visitors present. The convention was called to order by former Governor Franz, head of the provisional organization. Judge A. A. Davidson of Muskogee was made temporary chairman. St. Paul, Minn., July 25.—The annual meeting of the grand lodge, International Order of Good Templars opened today, the sessions being held in the old capitol building. All parts of the Union and Canada as well, are represented by the delegates.

Train Leaves Rails; Many Injured.

109, Celebrates Birthday.
Aurora, Ill., July 25.—James Moran of Morris, one hundred and nine years old, believed to be the oldest white man in the United States, entertained a big gathering of friends on his birthday anniversary.

THE ABUSE OF ATHLETICS.

F. Laaro, a Portuguese competitor in the Olympic games at Stockholm, ran 17 miles in a Marathon race, suffered a sun stroke and died the next day. It is an impressive warning to the young Americans who are exceeding the speed limit in their athletic competitions.

The human muscles are almost entirely under the control of the will, in sharp contrast with other physical functions. No matter how strongly you command the gastric juice to digest your imprudent midnight lobster supper, it will only flow as the laws of nature made it.

You may forbid your heart to palpitate because you allowed five minutes too little to catch a train and must run for it; you have as much command over your heart beats as over the wind.

The muscles, however, are slaves to the stern demands of the will. If you require a degree of toil beyond their ability to perform, involving danger to vital organs, they submit until you sink in a faint.

That is why the statistics of death rate among college athletes are so unsatisfactory. Dr. Robert Coughlin collected such figures for the year 1905, compared athletes with policy holders in a leading insurance company. The diseases taken for comparison were pneumonia, tuberculosis, typhoid, cerebro spinal meningitis, heart and kidney troubles.

Athletics, properly enjoyed, would make the body better able to withstand these diseases, classed as infectious and degenerative troubles. As a fact, there were only 41 of the policy holders who died from these maladies during a year, to 80 of the athletes.

Magnificent as athletic training is under restraint nothing breaks down a man quicker than excess of muscular effort. The high death rate among lumber jacks and miners is notable. The number of farmers who at the age of 45 cannot take in a load of hay without sunstroke tells of previous over-exertion.

A good doctor will tell the young man in training to keep at it just as long as there is a sense of exhilaration. And when that ceases, quit!

There are now in the United States over 31,000 printing and publishing plants, and the valuation of the output of these plants in 1909 was almost $738,000,000.

SHOE COMBINE LIKELY

Leading Manufacturers of the East to Form Trust.

Under Title of the American Standard Shoe Company, with a Capital of $50,000,000.

Boston, July 25.—A shoe manufacturers' trust representing the leading shoe manufacturers of the east will soon be an accomplished fact. It is proposed to consolidate into one company under the title of the American Standard Shoe company, with a capital of $50,000,000, a strong group of the eastern manufacturers selected from the most successful manufacturers of New England and New York.

The scheme to effect such a consolidation has been under consideration for some time by some of the largest houses in the trade and is favored by men who are recognized throughout New England as leaders in the industry.

The proposed consolidation has the endorsement of the firm of Brandels, Dunbar & Nutter, the senior partner of which is Louis D. Brandels, well known as the real representative of several of the most successful shoe manufacturers in New England.

HOME RULE FOR ALASKA

Senate Adopts Measure—Legislature to Consist of Sixteen Members.

Washington, July 25.—The Alaskan civil government bill, establishing a legislature of one house in the territory with authority to enact local laws, passed the senate with practically no opposition. The house has passed the bill, but a conference will be necessary to adjust differences.

The senate changed the house bill to eliminate a territorial senate of eight members and making the legislature consist of a single house of sixteen members.

MANY RESPECT MADDEN

Five Minute Tribute Paid by 150,000 Workers During Funeral.

Chicago, July 25.—For five minutes today 150,000 men employed in the Chicago building trades dropped their tools and implements of toil and with bowed heads paid tribute to the memory of Martin B. Madden, dead labor leader, who formerly was their chief. Unanimously the Contractors' council, the Associated Building Trades, and the Chicago building trades organizations agreed to stop all work for a period of five minutes during the funeral.

Dramatic Notes

PUTTING IT OVER.

A New Comedy Re-Opens the Olympic Thursday, August 1st, Chicago Premiere.

The metropolitan premier of a new comedy heralded as the funniest and the most original of the year 1912 will take place in Chicago at the Olympic theatre on Thursday, August 1. The name of the approaching attraction is Putting It Over. Members of the White Sox and the New York American baseball teams will attend the opening performance.

The theme of Putting It Over is love and baseball. The authors, Lee Arthur and Frank Hatch, have decisively succeeded in weaving these two elements of modern emotion into a logical and absorbing plot, full of spontaneous laughter and surprises. Putting It Over while a producer of merriment, is not a play of purely farcical nature. It is real life mirrored at its most humorous angles while the romantic interest is upheld by a love story which is developed in unique manner.

The cast is formed of distinguished players and includes Edwin Holt, Helen Holmes, Allison Skipworth, Royal Tracey, Harold Vosburgh, Veda Smith, Franklin Ritchie, Frederick Burt.

The hero of Putting It Over, Rose Sterling, is a collegian and an athlete.

Among the migrating birds it is found that some of the longest journeys are made by the smatic birds. The humming bird goes from the middle states of America to Mexico, and even as far as South America, and back again, every year.

THE REAL GOOD FELLOW

Of course, you're a good fellow when you line up at the bar Everybody has a round, and then another good cigar.They like you for your company, but as you flick the foam—
You forget the Real good fellow, who's awaiting you at home.Of course, you're a good fellow, and your name will head the list
When they're fixing up some flowers
for some man you've never missed
You're a booster for your cronies,
and their virtues fill a tome—
You don't praise the Real good fellow, who's awaiting you at homeOf course, you're a good fellow, till your round of joy is spent And you're heartsick and weary
and you haven't got a cent;
When you're down and out troubled you know which way to roam—
And you always find the Real good fellow awaiting you at home.The cost of living has gone up nearly two per cent since April, and the general advance last year was 9.70 per cent, according to an announcement recently made by Bradstreet's.

CORNS AND CRIME

Just at the moment, when all Mississippi Valley hearts are full of prayer for good corn weather, interest may be attracted to the meeting of the National Chiropractors' convention in Chicago at a time when conditions are peculiarly favorable for another variety of corns. The chairman of this convention, in his keynote address so to speak, made this thought impelling statement:Ninety-nine per cent of criminals in American penitentiaries generally have corns and neglected feet. Corns and crime are two evils.He continues:
Much of the ill temper and irrational habits that lead to divorce in the United States are due solely to corns. A corny foot is a menace to society.Those of us who have known the choleric agony of trampled bunions and walked-on corns will agree with both these statements, at least to a certain degree. No houseman will deny the impossibility of keeping up the sweetheart game, with its long strolls in the gloaming and ardent dances and picnic trips, when the wife of his bosom has a calloused protuberance on each of her two small toes. Neither will there be any uprising in denial of the fact that what ever latent criminality there is in a human being is thrice apt to come out under the inspiration of grievously afflicted pedals. Admitting this, one is at that point in his logic pre-pared to agree with this conclusion of the eminent footologist:We use our feet more than any other member, because they are out of sight. Get rid of American corns and you will remedy indirectly many evils of society.There are several hundred favorite prescriptions for bringing about the millennial dawn but this may be the one for which humanity has waited.
Did you ever see a picture of an angel with corns and bunions marring
the ideal?WANTED, To buy Washing machine and a phonograph. Not willing to pay a high price. Address S. Care

PRAGMATISM

This was the note which was handed to one of the grade teachers
the other day:"Dear Mum—Please excuse Johnny today. He will not be at school.
He is acting as timekeeper for his father. Last night you gave him this example, if a field is 4 miles square how long will it take a man walking 3 miles an hour to walk 2½ times around it? Johnny ain't no man, so we had to send his daddy.
They left early this morning, and my husband said they ought to be back late tonight, tho it would be hard going. Dear Mum, please make the next problem about ladies, as my husband can't afford to lose the day's work. I don't have no time to loaf, but I can spare a day off occasionally." Mrs. JonesCity Lady: Can you look over my shoulder, sir?Uncle Josh: I've just been lookin' over both of 'em, an' by gosh
they're all right!

A MODERN GIRL

She wears the most outrageous hats
Their loudness is alarming.
They blind your eyes, and maybe that'sThe reason why they're charming
Her hobbles in the latest style,
So scant 'twould set some crazy,
But all the men admire, while
They murmur "She's a daisy."She trips along with piquant grace,
'Neath women's eyes judicial.
A dash of color in her face,
It may be artificial,
While men gaze with admiring eye
Her beauty overrating.
And ask themselves the reason why
She is so fascinating.

Wife: John, dear, can you see what those people at the next table are eating?Husband: Can't see at all, but it
it sounds like soup.

TRAIN BLOCKED BY WORMS.

House Committee Asks $5,000 to Fight Pest.Washington, July 25.—The house committee on agriculture recommended an immediate appropriation of $5,000 to stop the ravages of the army worm in southern states. Secretary Wilson asked for the appropriation.
Representative Heflin of Alabama told the committee the worm was stopping railway trains in his district.

HOW TO GO FISHING.

Old Sport Tells How the Stunt Is Usually Pulled Off.It seems that you must begin a week ahead of the actual date of the trip. It is then that you meet the other two men and talk the matter over.
Perhaps you retire to a bar and talk
the matter over and have a couple of drinks apiece, perhaps somebody buys a dinner. If the trip is to last only one day a cozy seat in some bar corner and two drinks each will suffice; if longer the dinner is an absolute necessity. At the drinks or the dinner all the true fish stories that the three know are brought up and retold, together with several new ones that have been brought up since the last trip. Then you shake hands and pronounce each other a royal good fellow.The ensuing week is spent in telephoning each other about tackle, the train time, hotel accommodations, and in meeting occasionally and talking it all over and taking more drinks. The night before you leave for the lakes—if you do leave, which is not absolutely necessary—is spent in the sporting goods store patronized by you and your friends, spending money and listening to reports of the early crop of fish stories. On the way to the depot you must stop and buy another bottle of whiskey. You ride out in the smoking car, drink
most of the whiskey and lose a dollar and a quarter in a game. Then you actually go out on the lake and make a few casts, discover that the day is not just right for fishing and come back to the hotel to wait for train time.Right here you lose track of events for somehow you acquire two or

OWNER OF SLOOP KIDNAPED

Two Men Carried Him Off and Made Him Watch a Taxi All Night While They Slept.New York.—Not since the time the big whale was washed ashore and fleeced into the barroom at the Golden Eagle hotel in Canarsie in an intoxicated condition, about fifteen years ago, have the residents of that quiet village on the shore of Jamaica bay been so upset as now, and all because of a taxi-cab outrage perpetrated on one of Canarsie's leading residents."Of course," said an old clam digger, "it's rare for taxicabs to drift down this way, but now and then we see one and everybody stops to look at it, but our main street is fast getting like Broadway; we have two moving picture places now, and they're coining money, too—took in nearly ten dollars at one place the other night. But about this taxicab business.""Sol Collyer, who owns the sloop Wild Mag, was coming up from the dock, where he had made his sloop fast for the night, when suddenly a taxicab comes along and out jumps two men. They grab Sol and throw him into the taxicab and the chauffeur drives a few blocks to the east of the main street on the Wyckoff farm road, where the men abandon the machine, telling Collyer not to budge or cry out at peril of his life."The men walked away while Sol who is a little man and afraid to take chances, remained in the taxicab all night. When the men returned, about eight o'clock the next morning, they found Collyer chilled by the cold and stiff in the joints."The men were very pleasant and wished Sol good morning; then they had the nerve to thank Sol for taking care of the car through the night
while they slept in the Golden Eagle hotel."So many taxicab thieves," one of the men said to Sol, "are around that we were afraid to leave the taxicab unguarded for the night. It was certainly very good of you, and we thank you most heartily. There being no garage in Canarsie in which to put the taxicab, we just had to do this and we are sorry if we caused you any inconvenience. Good-by." And they were off, leaving Sol plumb flabber-gasted."

About the Spare Room.

How often the best and sunniest bedroom in a small house is set aside for the rare visitor, while the children are cramped for space, or its master, the bread-winner, has some dark cupboard as his special sanctum.
If he attempts to write in the dining-room he must bundle away his papers whenever the table is required for a meal, and the wear and tear to his temper—for every man finds it aggravating to be "hustled"—often makes him "gay ill to live with." But for the "fetish" of that seldom used spare room he would find home far more home-like, and his wife would reap a sure reward for the sacrifice of the petty pride which makes her think more of "what people will say"
than of her husband's comfort.

THE FISHING GAME.

George Fitch's "Vest Pocket Essay"
on an Alluring Subject.Fishing is one of man's most fascinating methods of letting time go on as it darn pleases.A man who fishes is a man who has two hours or two weeks he doesn't need. So he throws them in the river.The object in fishing is to catch something. This is not hard to do.
The man who can't catch malaria while fishing or thunder after returning home is no fisherman at all.However, the most satisfactory thing to catch while fishing is a fish.
This is because a fish is the most difficult thing to catch. Only a man with great patience can catch a fish. He must wait until the fish gets ready to be caught like a merchant who does not advertise.An impatient man would dam a river, pump out the water and catch his fish by the tail. But this is not considered good ethics in fishing.Impatient men have no business fishing, but should stick to business.Some people regard fishing as an exercise. These people take $37 worth of implements and travel 400 miles north where they spend ten days wading streams and trying to drop an artificial fly into the mouth of a trout at 40 rods with a patent rod.Others regard fishing as a rest.
Men of this kind take a day off, hire a boat and sit in it all day long under the shade of a straw hat, soaking anglerworms in the river and soaking themselves in preservatives until the mosquitoes fly sideways as they leave them with a full cargo.Still others regard fishing as an excuse. It is useless to offer fishermen of this sort a job, because they are already as busy as they want to be.Fishing develops patience and encourages the fisher to think grand and solemn thoughts when the mosquitoes are not bothering him. However, it is not wise to fish much before the age of forty. Men who begin to fish early develop too much patience. Some of them are still waiting, at eighty, for good luck to come along and haul them to prosperity by one leg.Catching fish is largely a matter of luck. But telling about them is a matter of imagination. The best fisher can hardly make a living at it, but a man who is skillful at explaining why he didn't land a seven-foot muskellunge is laying the foundation of a successful career as a press agent.

four or five days at a time every month,
and so weak I could hardly walk. I had cramps, backache and headache, and was so nervous and weak that I dreaded to see anyone or have anyone move in the room. The doctors gave me medicine to ease me at those times, and said that I ought to have an operation. I would not listen to that, and when a friend of my husband's told him about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it had done for his wife, I was willing to take it.
Now I look the picture of health and feel like it, too. I can do all my own house-

DOES ADVERTISING PAY?

The Dwight Star and Herald asks this question, and then remarks:Well, we should say it does! Last week a merchant, advertised fresh dairy butter for sale. The composi-tor substituted an "h" for a "d" and the ad read: "Fresh Hairy Butter for Sale." A small barber called up the grocer and offered to shave the butter at standard rates. The grocer got mad and kicked the barber, breaking his nose and otherwise disfiguring him so that he was compelled to call upon the doctor, who charged him a tenner for services rendered. The next day the barber met the editor in the street and threw a brick at him, giving him a close shave. In his efforts to get away the pen pusher fell down, tear-ing his trousers so badly on one side that he was necessitated to buy a new pair; also the editorial shears, which were in his hip pocket, penetrated his anatomy so that the services of a surgeon were required.
And all the result of one little ad.
Who asked, "Does it pay to advertise?"Sister Johnsing: I hear you done

WHY YOU SIGH

When anyone sighs unconscionly it means they have been taking short breaths and not drawing sufficient oxygen into the lungs. Finally, the lungs must have more oxygen, they are hungry for it, and so the lungs exert their right and actually force you to take in a great breath of air. This gives them the needed oxygen, and they can go on with their work for a while longer
when they will force another "sigh" which is really helping themselves to more oxygen in spite of yourself.W. W. Harden of Nelson township

CHAPTER XI.

Episodic.

Fortune had immediately returned from the bazaars. And a kind of torpor blanketed her mind, usually so fertile and active. For a time the process of the evolution of thought was denied her; she tried to think, but there was an appalling lack of continuity, of broken threads. It was like one of those circumferential railways; she traveled, but did not get anywhere. Rynne had told her too much for his own sake, but too little for hers. She sat back in the carriage, inert and listless, and indeterminedly likened her condition to driftwood in the ebb and flow of beach-waves. The color and commotion of the streets were no longer absorbed; it was as if she were riding through emptiness, through the unreality of a dream. She was oppressed and stifled, too; harbinger of storms.

Mechanically she dismissed the carriage at the hotel, mechanically she went to her room, and in this semi-conscious mood sat down in a chair, and there George's wish found her, futilely. Oh, there was one thing clear, clear as the sky outside. All was not right; something was wrong; and this wrong upon one side concerned her mother, her uncle and Rynne, and upon the other side, Mr. Jones. Think and think as she might, her endeavors gave her no single illumination. Four blind walls surrounded her. The United Romance and Adventure company—there could not possibly be such a thing in existence; it was a jest of Rynne's to cover up something far more serious.

She pressed her eyes with a hand. They ached dully, the dull pain of bewilderment, which these days recurred with frequency. A sense of time was lacking; for luncheon hour came and passed without her being definitely aware of it. This in itself was a puzzle. A faint, such as she had taken that morning, always keened the edge of her appetite; and yet, there was no craving whatever.

Where was her mother? If she would only come now, the cumulative doubts of all these months should be put into speech. They had treated her as one would treat a child; it was neither just nor reasonable. If not as a child, but as one they dared not trust, then they were afraid of her. But why? She pressed her hands together, impatiently. Rynne, clever as he was, had made a slip or two which he had sought to cover up with a jest. Why should he confess himself to be a rogue unless his tongue had got the better of his discretion? If he was a rogue, why should her mother and her uncle make use of him, if not for roguery's sake? They were fools, fools! If they had but seen and understood her as she was, she would have gone to the bitter end with them, loyally, with sealed lips. But no; they had chosen not to see; and in this had morally betrayed her. Ah, it rankled, and the injustice of it grew from pain to fury. At that moment, had she known anything, she certainly would have denounced them. Of what use was loyalty, since none of them sought it in her?

The Major was wiser than he knew when he spoke of the hundredth danger, the danger unforeseen, the danger against which they could make no preparation. And he would have been first to sense the irony of it could he have seen where this danger lay.

Why should they wish the pleasant young man out of the way? Why should Rynne wish to inveigle him into the hands of this man Mahomed? Was it merely self-preservation, or something deeper, more sinister? Think! Why couldn't she think of something? It was only a little pleasure trip to Cairo, they had told her, and when she had asked to go along, they seemed willing enough. But they had come to this hotel, when formerly they had always put up at Shepherd's. And here again the question why? Was it because Mr. Jones was staying here? She liked him, what little she had seen of him. He was out of an altogether different world than that to which she was accustomed. He was neither insanely mad over cards nor a social idler. He was a young man with a real interest in life, a worker, notwithstanding that he was reputed to be independently rich. And her mother had once borrowed money of him, never intending to pay it back. The shame of it! And why should she approach him the very first day and recall the incident, if not with the ulterior purpose of using him further? As a ball strikes a wall only to rebound to the thrower, so it was with all these questions. There was never any answer.

Tired out, mentally and physically, she laid her head upon the cool top of the stand. And in this position her mother, who had returned to dress for tea, found her. Believing Fortune to be asleep, Mrs. Chedsove dropped a hand upon her shoulder.

Fortune raised her head.

"Why, child, what is the matter?" the mother asked. The face she saw was not tear-stained; it was as cold and passionless as that by which sculptors represent their interpretations of Justice.

"Matter?" Fortune spoke, in a tone that did not reassure the other. "In the first place I have only one real question to ask. It depends upon how you answer it. Am I really your daughter?"

"Really my daughter?" Mrs. Chedsove stepped back, genuinely astonished. "Really my daughter? The child is mad!" as if addressing an imaginary third person. "What makes you ask such a silly question?" She was in a hurry to change her dress, but the new attitude of this child of hers warranted some patience.

"That is no answer," said Fortune, with her unmoved deliberation of a prosecuting attorney.

"Certainly you are my daughter."

"Good. If you had denied it, I should have held my peace; but since you admit that I am of your flesh and blood, I am going to force you to recognize that in such a capacity I have some rights. I did not ask to come into this world; but inasmuch as I am here, I propose to become an individual, not a thing to be given bread and butter upon sufferance. I have been talking with Horace. I met him in the bazaars this morning. He said some things which you must answer."

"Horace? And what has he said, pray tell?" Her expression was flippant, but a certain inquietude penetrated her heart and accelerated its beating. What had the love-lorn fool said to the child?

"He said that he was not a good man, and that you tolerated him because he ran errands for you. What kind of errands?"

Mrs. Chedsove did not know whether to laugh or take the child by the shoulders and shake her soundly. "He was laughing when he said that. Errands? One would scarcely call it that."

"Why did you renew the acquaintance with Mr. Jones, when you knew that you never intended paying back that loan?"

Here was a question, Mrs. Chedsove realized, from the look of the child, that would not bear evasion.

"What makes you think I never intended to repay him?"

Fortune laughed. It did not sound grateful in the mother's ears.

"Mother, this is a crisis; it can not be met by counter-questions nor by flippancy. You know that you did not intend to pay him. What I demand to know is, why you spoke to him again, so affably, why you seemed so eager to enter into his good graces once more. Answer that."

Her mother pondered. For once she was really at a loss. The unexpectedness of this phase caught her off her balance. She saw one thing vividly, regretfully: she had missed a valuable point in the game by not adjusting her play to the growth of the child, who had, with the phenomenal suddenness which still baffles the psychologists, stepped out of girlhood into womanhood, all in a day. What a fool she had been not to have left the child at Mentone!

"I am waiting," said Fortune. "There are more questions; but I want this one answered first."

"This is pure insolence!"

"Insolence of a kind, yes."

"And I refuse to answer. I have some authority still."

"Not so much, mother, as you had yesterday. You refuse to explain?"

"Absolutely!"

"Then I shall judge you without mercy." Fortune rose, her eyes blazing passionately. She caught her mother by the wrist, and she was the stronger of the two. "Can't you understand? I am no longer a child. I am a woman. I do not ask, I demand!"

She drew the older woman toward her, eye to eye. "You palter, you always palter; palter and evade. You do not know what frankness and truth are. Is the continual evasion calculated to still my distrust? Yes, I distrust you, you, my mother. You have made the mistake of leaving me alone too much. I have always distrusted you, but I never knew why."

Mrs. Chedsove tugged, but ineffectually. "Let go!"

"Not till I have done. Out of the patchwork, squares have been formed. What of the men who used to come to the villa and play cards with Uncle George, the men who went away and never came back? What of your long disappearances of which I knew nothing except that one day you vanished and upon another you came back? Did you think that I was a fool, that I had no time to wonder over these things? You have never tried to make a friend of me; you have always done your best to antagonize me. Did you hate my father so much that, when his death put him out of range, you had to concentrate it upon me? My father!" Fortune roughly flung aside the arm. "Who knows about him, who he was, what he was, what he looked like? As a child, I used to ask you, but never would you speak. All I know about him nurse told me. This much has always burned my mind; you married him for wealth that he did not have. What do you mean by this simple young man across the corridor?"

Mrs. Chedsove was pale, and the artistic touch of rouge upon her cheeks did not disguise the pallor. The true evidence lay in the whiteness of her nose. Never in her varied life had she felt more helpless, more impotent. To be wild with rage, and yet to be powerless! That alertness of mind, that mental buoyancy, which had always given her the power to return a volley in kind, had deserted her. Moreover, she was distinctly alarmed. This little fool, with a turn of her hand, might send tottering into ruins the skillful planning of months.

"Are you in love with him?" aiming to gain time to regather her scattered thoughts.

"Love?" bitterly. "I am in a fine mood to love any one. My question, my question," vehemently; "my question!"

"I refuse absolutely to answer you!" Anger was first to reorganize its forces; and Mrs. Chedsove felt the heat of it run through her veins. But, oddly enough, it was anger directed less toward the child than toward her own palpable folly and oversight.

"Then I shall leave you. I will go out into the world and earn my own bread and butter. Ah," a little brokenly, "if you had but given me a little kindness, you do not know how loyal I should have been to you! But no; I am and always have been the child that wasn't wanted."

The despair in the gesture that followed these words stirred the mother's calloused heart, moved it strangely, mysteriously. "My child!" she said impulsively, holding out her hands.

"No," Fortune drew back. "It is too late."

"Have it so. But you speak of going out into the world to earn your own bread and butter. What do you know about the world? What do you do? You have never done anything but read romantic novels and moon about in the flower-garden. Foolish child! Harm Mr. Jones? Why? For what purpose? I have no more interest in him than if he were one of those mummies over in the museum. And I certainly meant to repay him. I should have done so if you hadn't taken the task upon your own broad shoulders. I am in a hurry. I am going out to Mena House to tea. I've left Celeste off for the day, so please unhook my waist and do not bother your head about Mr. Jones." She turned her back upon her daughter, quite confident that she had for the time suppressed the incipient rebellion. She heard Fortune crossing the room. "What are you doing?" petulantly.

"I am ringing for the hall-maid." And Fortune resumed her chair, picked up her Baedeker, and became apparently absorbed over the map of Assuan.

Again wrath mounted to her mother's head. She could combat anger, tears, protestations; but this indifference, studied and unfeeling, left her weaponless; and she was too wise to unbridle her tongue, much as she longed to do so. She was beaten. Not an agreeable sensation to one who counted only her victories.

"Fortune, later you will be sorry for this spirit," she said, when she felt the tremor of wrath no longer in her throat.

Fortune turned a page, and jotted down some notes with a pencil. Sad as she was at heart, tragic as she knew the result of this outbreak to be, she could hardly repress a smile at the thought of her mother's discomfort.

And so the chasm widened, and went on widening till the end of time.

Mrs. Chedsove was glad that the hall-maid knocked and came in just then. It at least saved her the ignominy of a retreat. She dressed, however, with the same deliberate care that she had always used. Nothing ever derailed her sense of proportion relative to her toilet, nothing ever made her forget its importance. "Good-by, dear," she said. "I shall be in at dinner." If the maid had any suspicion that there had been a quarrel, she should at least be impressed with the fact that she, Mrs. Chedsove, was not to blame for it.

Fortune nibbled the end of her pencil.

The door closed behind her mother and the maid. She waited for a time. Then she sprang to the window and stood there. She saw her mother driven off. She was dressed in pearl-grey, with a Reynolds hat of grey velvet and sweeping plumes; as handsome and distinguished a woman as could be found that day in all Cairo. The watchman threw her Baedeker, her note-book, and her pencil violently into a corner. It had come to her at last, this thing that she had been striving for since noon. She did not care what the risks were; the storm was too high in her heart to listen to the voice of caution. She would do it; for she judged it the one thing, in justice to her own blood, she must accomplish. She straightway dressed for the street; and if she did not give the same care as her mother to the vital function, she produced an effect that merited comparison.

She loitered before the porter's bureau till she saw him busily engaged in answering questions of some women tourists. Then, with a slight but friendly nod, she stepped into the bureau and stopped before the key-rack. She hung up her key, but took it down again, as if she had changed her mind. At least, this was the porter's impression as he bowed to her in the midst of the verbal bombardment. Fortune went upstairs. Ten or fifteen minutes elapsed, when she returned, hung up the key, and walked briskly toward the side-entrance at the very moment George, in his fruitless search of her, pushed through the revolving doors in front. And all the time she was wondering how it was that her knees did not give under. It was terrible. She balanced between laughter and tears, hysterically.

She had gone scarcely a hundred yards when she was accosted by a tall Arab whom she indistinctly recollected having seen before; where, she could not definitely imagine. It was the ragged green turban that cleared away her puzzlement. The Arab was the supposed beggar over whom Percival (how easily she had fallen into the habit of calling him that!) had stumbled. He was not tall and straight that she knew he wasn't going to beg; so naturally she stopped. Without a word, without even a look that expressed anything, he slipped a note into her hand, bowed with Oriental gravity, and stepped aside for her to proceed. She read the note hastily as she continued her way. Horace? Why should he wish to meet her that evening, at the southeast corner of the Shar'ia Mahomoud-El-Fakki, a step from the British Consulate's? And she mustn't come in a carriage nor tell any one where she was going? Why all such childish mystery? He could see her far more conveniently in the lounging-room of the hotel. She tore the note into scraps and flung them upon the air. She was afraid. She was almost certain why he wished to meet her where neither her mother's nor her uncle's eye would be within range. Should she meet him? Deeper than this, dared she? Why had she come to Cairo, when at Mentone she had known peace, such peace as destiny was generous enough to dole out to her? And now, out of this tolerable peace, a thousand hands were reaching to rend her heart, to wring it. She decided quickly. Since she had come this far, to go on to the end would add but little to her burden. Better to know all too soon than too late.

That the note had not been directed to her and that she was totally unfamiliar with Rynne's handwriting, escaped her. She had too many other things upon her mind to see all things clearly, especially such trifles. She finished her walk, returning by the way she had gone, gave the key to the lift-boy, and in her room dropped down upon the bed, dry-eyed and weary. The most eventful day she had ever known.

And all the while George sat by the window and watched, and at length fell into a frame of mind that was irritable, frangible and self-condemnatory. And when he found that his precious Yliorides was gone, his condition was the essence of all disagreeable emotions. It was beyond him how any one could have stolen it. He never failed to lock his door and leave the key with the porter. And surely, only a man with wings could have gained entrance by the window. Being a thorough business man among other accomplishments, he reported his loss at once to the management; and the management set about the matter with celerity. At half after seven every maid and servant in the hotel had been questioned and examined, without the least noticeable result. The rug was nowhere to be found. George felt the loss keenly. He was not so rich that he could afford to lose both the rug and the thousand pounds he had paid for it. His first thought had been of Rynne; but it was proved that Rynne had not been in the hotel since morning; at least, no one had seen him.

George gloomed about. A beastly day, all told; everything had gone wrong, and all because he had overslept. At dinner something was wrong with the soup; the fish was greasy; the roast was dry and stringy; the wine, full of pieces of cork. Out into the lounge-room again; and then the porter hurried over to him with a note from Rynne. It stated briefly that it was vitally important for Mr. Jones to meet him at nine o'clock at the English-Bar in the Quarter Rosetti. Any driver would show him the way. Mohamed-El-Gebel, the guardian of the Holy Yliorides, had turned up, and the band was beginning to play. Would Mr. Jones like a little fun by the wayside?

"I'm his man," said George. "But how the devil did this Mahomed ever get into my room?"

Had fortune dined down-stairs instead of alone in her room, events might have turned out differently. Rynne had really written to George, but not to Fortune.

Mahomed, fatalist that he was, had thrown everything upon the whirling scales of chance, and waited. Later, he may have congratulated himself upon his good luck. But it wasn't luck; it was the will of Allah that he, Mahomed, should contribute his slender share in working out the destinies of two young people.

George was in the proper mood for an adventure. He went so far as to admit to himself that he would have liked nothing better than a fistfight. The one mistake he made in his calculations was dress. Men didn't generally go a-venturing in such finical attire. They wore bowlers and sack-coats and carried heavy walking-sticks. The only weapons George had were his two hands, now adorned with snug-fitting opera-gloves.

He saw Mrs. Chedsove, spoke to her, inquired about Fortune, and was informed that she had dined in her room. A case of doldrums, Mrs. Chedsove believed.

"I'm in a peck of trouble," said George, craving a little sympathy.

"In what way?"

"The rug I told you about is gone."

"What? Stolen?"

"Yes. Vanished into thin air."

"That's too bad. Of course the police will eventually find it for you."

"I'm afraid that's exactly the trouble. I really haven't put the case in the hands of the police."

"Oh, I see," Mrs. Chedsove looked profoundly sorry.

"And here I am due for Port Said tomorrow."

"That's the kind that bowls you over," said the Major. "If there is anything I can do after you are gone."

"Oh, I shouldn't think of bothering you. Thanks, though."

"You must have lost your key," suggested Mrs. Chedsove.

"No. It's been hanging up in the porter's bureau all day."

"Well, I hope you find the rug," said the Major, with a sly glance at his sister.

"Thanks. I must be off. The chap I bought it of says that the official Vitally Important to Meet Him at Nine O'Clock at the English-Bar.

guardian from Bardad has arrived, and that there's likely to be some sport. I'm to meet him at a place called the English-Bar."

"The English-Bar?" The Major shook his head. "A low place, if I remember."

"And you are going dressed like that?" asked Mrs. Chedsove.

"Haven't time to change." He excused himself and went in search of a carriage.

"The play begins, Kate," whispered the Major. "This Hodge of ours is a wonderful chap."

"Poor fellow!"

"What? Hodge?"

"No; Percival. He'll be very uncomfortable in patent-leather pumps."

The Major laughed light-heartedly. "I suppose we might telegraph for reservation on the Ludwig."

"I shall pack at once. Fortune can find her way to Mentone from Naples, I'm beginning to worry about that girl. She has a temper; and she is beginning to have some ideas."

"Marry her, marry her! How much longer must I preach that sermon? She's growing handsomer every day, too. Watch your laurels, Kate."

Mrs. Chedsove inspected her rings. Meanwhile, George directed his driver to go post-haste to the English-Bar. That he found it more or less of a dive in nowise alarmed him. He had been in places of more frightful aspect. As Rynne had written him to make inquiries of the barnard relative to finding him, he did so. She jerked her head toward the door at the rear. George went boldly to it, opened it, and stepped inside.

WOMEN TAKE NOTICE!

A man cannot understand the torture and suffering many women endure uncomplainingly. If the majority of men suffered as much pain and endured with patience the weakening sicknesses that most women do, they would ask for immediate sympathy and look for a quick cure.

Many women have been saved from a life of misery and suffering by turning to the right remedy—Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy which is safe to take because containing no narcotics, alcohol or injurious ingredients. It is an alternative extract of roots, made with pure glycerin, and first given to the public by that famous specialist in the diseases of women—Dr. R. V. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. HESSER.

Mrs. Lizzie M. Hesser, of Lincoln, Neb., 539-C-2 St., says: "I send a testimonial with much pleasure so that some suffering woman may know the true worth of your remedies. I was a great sufferer from female troubles but after taking one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which a friend advised me to take, I found myself very much improved. After taking three more bottles, and using two boxes of Dr. Pierce's Lotion Tablets, I found myself on the road to recovery. I was in poor health for five years but now I am cured."

"I have all women suffering from female weakness will give Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription a fair trial."

Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules.

Read the statements of Dixon citizens.

And decide for yourself.

Here is one case of it:

E. B. Fisher, barber 116 Hennepin Ave., Dixon, Ill., says: "All I said about Doan's Kidney Pills in 1909 when I publicly recommended them I am glad to confirm at this time. I know that they are just as represented. I had rheumatic pains through my back and limbs and when I stood in one position for any length of time it was hard for me to move. My kidneys acted irregularly and contained sediment. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I got a supply at Leake Bros. Drug store, and they did me so much good that I continued taking them. They made me strong and well. I still used this remedy once in awhile and it keeps my kidneys in good working order."

For Sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

NEWS OF ILLINOIS

A Telegraphic Chronicle of State Happenings.

TO CONTEST HUSBAND'S WILL

Mrs. Susan C. Montague of Charleston Not Satisfied With Arrangement Giving Her Small Share of the Estate.

Charleston, July 25.—Mrs. Susan C. Montague has filed a demurrer to the will of her late husband, Joel A. Montague, of Mattoon, indicating she intends to contest the document, which disposes of an estate estimated to be worth $500,000.

The will, filed August 3, last, gave the bulk of the estate to the testator's son, Charles T., provided the latter lived a sober and model life until fifty years old, marry and live with a good woman and shun drink and gambling.

It was also stipulated if the son, at the age of sixty, continued to lead an exemplary life he should receive a still larger bequest.

As a result of the prospects of his becoming wealthy, the son received hundreds of letters from women in all sections of the country, proposing marriage.

Mrs. Montague, the widow, so the will states, had been provided for at the time of her marriage in order to annul her dower claims.

Equal Suffragists Busy.

Chicago, July 25.—The Illinois Equal Suffrage association has begun the circulation of petitions for signers in order to put the equal suffrage question up to the voters at the November election.

They hope to obtain 100,000 signatures by August 1, so as to insure the printing of the question on the "little ballot," in connection with the official ballot to be used November 4.

This vote would come under the public policy act of Illinois. If the proposition should be endorsed by the voters, then it would be up to the general assembly to extend the full suffrage to the women. The vote is not binding, however, only advisory. At that, if it carried in the general election, it is likely the legislature would pass the law.

Jail for Kleptomaniac.

Chicago, July 25.—Mrs. Sophia Kanzer of Fort Madison, Ia., told Municipal Judge Newcomer she could not resist the temptation to take the beautiful things which she saw in a store. She pleaded to go free because of her desire to support her two children, but the court was obdurate after evidence was introduced that it was not a first offense and that she had money in her purse when she was arrested for shoplifting. She was sentenced to ten days in jail.

County Convention Called.

Charleston, July 25.—The executive committee of the Mattoon Roosevelt club issued a call for convention of the Progressive party of Coles county to be held in Charleston at the county courthouse July 27, to delegates to the state meeting of the Roosevelt party to be held in Chicago August 3. G. H. Douglass is president of the club. The Roosevelt party has not yet decided whether a county ticket will be nominated in Coles county.

Seek Cure of Physical Ills.

Chicago, July 25.—Five thousand pilgrims journeyed to the Cathedral of St. Anne in search of cures for their physical and spiritual ills. Hundreds of cripples, some in wheel chairs and scores on crutches, added pathos to the endless procession that flowed through the church. Some had traveled across the continent to attend the novena of St. Anne, cherishing the hope that through worship they might be made well and strong again.

Coal Dealers Hold Meeting.

TRADE MORAL—The merchant who is trying to do business without advertising is winking at Dame Fortune through blue spectacles. He knows he's winking, but she doesn't. This paper is a good advertising medium.

TRADE MORAL—Joan of Arc was the only woman on earth able to resist a bargain advertisement—and she's dead. If you've got a bargain in something, advertise it to the women folks in this paper.

TRADE MORAL—Advertising prominence in this paper is to you, Mr. Home Merchant, what steam is to an engine.
